BROKE AS A JOKE

But we're not laughing: Millennials are 47 times poorer than their elders

CNN

NEW YORK Older Americans are now 47 times richer than the youngest generation, marking the largest wealth gap ever recorded between the two age groups.

In 2009, households headed by adults 65 years and older held a median net worth of $170,494, while households headed by adults 35 years and younger held a net worth of $3,662, according to a report by the Pew Research Center.

While it's typical for older generations to hold more wealth than younger ones who've had less time to save, the gap between the two age groups has widened rapidly.

A generation ago, the older age group was richer than the younger by a 10-to-1 ratio. Now, that gap stands at 47-to-1.

Compared to their same-aged peers in 1984, the younger group actually has seen its net worth decline 68 percent, but the older group has seen its wealth rise 42 percent.

So why the growing chasm?

Housing trends have played a major role, the Pew Center said. While rising home equity helped drive wealth gains for the older generation over a long timeframe, the younger generation has had less time to ride out the housing market's volatility—especially its most recent boom and bust.

“Most of today's older homeowners got into the housing market long ago, at ‘pre-bubble’ prices,” the report said. “Along with everyone else, they've been hurt by the housing market collapse of recent years, but over the long haul, most have seen their home equities rise.”

“For young adults who are in the beginning stages of wealth accumulation, there has been no such luck, at least so far.”

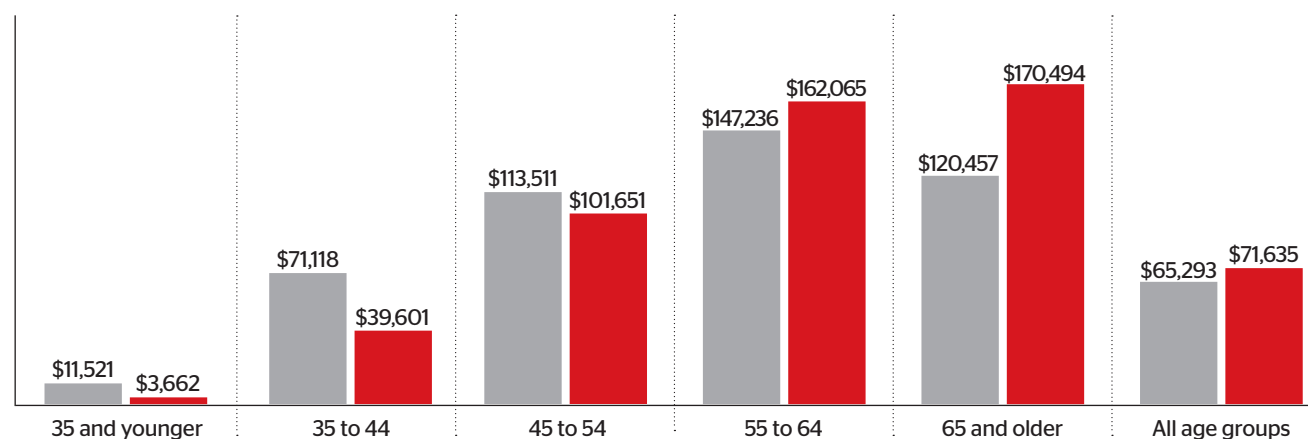

Meanwhile, the younger generation also is taking longer to enter the labor force and get married. And surging college costs also are leaving them burdened by more student loans than prior generations.

WEALTH GAP WIDENING

Older Americans are nearly 47 times as rich as the youngest generation—the largest wealth gap recorded between the two age groups. Rising home equity has helped the older generation build wealth over the years, while the younger generation has had less time to ride out the housing bust. The younger generation also is taking longer to enter the labor force and get married, and has more student debt.

What Red Line news means for riders

GOING PUBLIC

Tracy Swartz

» @tracyswartz

What's black and white and red all over? The Red Line, which has been the star of CTA news recently.

First, there was the announcement this summer that the Loyola stop will see a makeover.

Next, the Wilson and Clark/Division stops were trumpeted for facelifts.

Then, last week, officials reported $646 million in state funding to repair the southern portion of the Red Line, which has been plagued with slow zones, among other Red Line improvements.

But the Red Line proposition that has stayed under the radar is the Red and Purple line modernization project, a controversial set of six proposals that included closing some stops and creating express train service.

The CTA currently is drafting an environmental impact statement, which it expects to complete in 2013.

The statement is supposed to analyze the effects of the proposed project and its potential impact on the environment and riders.

Riders have been very vocal about the project since it was revealed 10 months ago. The CTA said it received more than 1,500 comments and counted more than 500 people at four public meetings in January.

The most controversial proposals, based on negative comments the CTA received, are the three-track and the two-track modernization plans.

The three-track plan would implement express train service but close Jarvis, Thorn-dale and Lawrence stops on the Red Line and the Foster and South Boulevard stops on the Purple Line. Secondary entrances at nearby stops would be constructed. The two-track plan has the northern Red Line trains going underground. The CTA said this option was not financially or technically feasible, so it no longer is included in the proposal.

The most supported proposals are the transfer station and four-track modernization plans. No stops would close under the transfer station proposal, which would transform the Wilson and Loyola stops into transfer stations that would be accessible to people with disabilities.

The four-track modernization plan is similar to the three-track plan but express service hours may be extended. The other two proposals are to keep the CTA at status quo (current level of service) and perform a basic rehab to stations and tracks.

As the CTA looks to (finally) update the Red Line, riders should keep an open mind to these modernization proposals. Look beyond the positives and negatives as black and white and focus on the red.

Survey says...

The CTA wants your opinion about its official Twitter page, @cta, which the agency launched last week. Go to goo.gl/bDKsv to update the CTA on its updates.

The last word

The final CTA board hearing about the 2012 budget, which calls for no service cuts or fare hikes, will be 6 p.m., Thursday at Kennedy-King College, 740 W. 63rd St.

RIDER'S BLOCK

My pledge to ride every CTA bus line continues. I rode the No. 63-West-63rd last week and boiled my review down to a tweet.

Woman who has accused Cain of sexual harassment has roots in Chicago

Chicago Tribune

A Chicago woman came forward Monday to accuse presidential hopeful Herman Cain of groping her while the two were in a car 14 years ago, while Cain was the head of a Washington trade group.

The allegations are the most explicit to have been made public and mark the first time one of Cain's accusers has identified herself.

At a press conference in New York, Sharon Bialek, a former employee of the National Restaurant Association, said she had sought Cain's help in finding a new job after the association fired her.

Instead, Bialek said, Cain, while the two were seated in a parked car, reached under her skirt and also attempted to move her head toward his crotch.

Cain's campaign instantly issued a denial. "All allegations of harassment against Mr. Cain are completely false," it said.

Attorney Gloria Allred, who is representing Bialek, said the woman was born and raised in Chicago and "has spent the majority of her life there."

An assistant for Allred declined to say where Bialek now lives.

For the past two years, Bialek has been a full-time homemaker and single mother of a son, 13, the attorney said.

Allred said Bialek met Cain through her former job with the educational foundation of the restaurant association in Chicago in 1996-1997.

After leaving the foundation, Bialek worked for five years for WGN Radio in marketing and for two and a half years at CBS Radio as managing director for non-traditional revenue, Allred said. (WGN is owned by Tribune Co.)

Bialek is, apparently, the fourth to accuse Cain of sexually inappropriate conduct during the time Cain was president and chief executive officer of the association. She said she did not file a complaint after the incident in July 1997 because she was no longer working for the trade group.

Blago will learn his sentencing fate Dec. 6

Chicago Tribune

A federal judge on Tuesday scheduled former Gov. Rod Blagojevich's sentencing for Dec. 6.

The disgraced former governor was convicted last summer on sweeping corruption charges, including allegations he tried to sell the U.S. Senate seat left open by Barack Obama's election as president.

U.S. District Judge James Zagel had originally scheduled Blagojevich's sentencing for Oct. 6, but it was indefinitely postponed in part because the judge was then presiding over the trial of Blagojevich co-defendant William Cellini, a Springfield power broker who was convicted last week.

Prosecutors have not said yet what sentence they will seek for Blagojevich, but it is widely expected that they will ask for more than the 6 1/2-year prison term being served by his predecessor, former Gov. George Ryan, for his 2006 corruption conviction.

U.S. Attorney's Office spokesman Randall Samborn said that the sentencing could go into a second day if necessary.

Police blast Penn State over scandal

1 Two former Penn State officials were charged Monday with covering up alleged sexual assaults of young boys by former coach Jerry Sandusky (above), as authorities criticized the university for allowing the abuse to continue unchecked for more than a decade.

The scandal has tarnished the reputation of the university, its football program and Joe Paterno, the revered head coach who reported the abuse up the athletic program chain of command. Paterno himself is not a target of the investigation.

Pennsylvania's top police officer's voice quivered when he said that in 40 years on the job he had never seen a case where someone was so clearly caught and yet not turned in to police.

UPS hiring spree

United Parcel Service may hire 55,000 holiday workers this year, a 10 percent increase from 2010, to help with shipping gains bolstered by online shopping. More than 120 million packages may be delivered in the week before Christmas, up 6 percent from last year, the world's largest package-delivery company said Monday in a statement.

Asteroid adventure

A huge asteroid will pass closer to Earth than the moon Tuesday, giving scientists a rare chance for study without having to launch a space probe, officials said. Earth's close encounter with the asteroid will occur at 5:28 p.m. Chicago time, as the space rock sails about 201,000 miles from the planet.

Jackson doctor guilty

2 LOS ANGELES A two-year legal battle over who was responsible for Michael Jackson's sudden death came to a dramatic close Monday as a California jury found Dr. Conrad Murray guilty of involuntary manslaughter.

Murray appeared to show no emotion as the verdict was read, but someone in the gallery let out a loud, short scream.

Sentencing was set for Nov. 29, with Murray facing up to four years in prison. Los Angeles County Superior Court Judge Michael Pastor ordered Murray to be held without bail until that date, and Murray was led from the courtroom in handcuffs.

Murray

"This is not a crime involving a mistake of judgment.

... This was a crime where the end result was the death of a human being," Pastor said in explaining his decision to remand Murray to police custody. "That factor demonstrates rather dramatically that the public should be protected."

Murray's medical license will be automatically suspended as a result of the conviction, according to Los Angeles County District Attorney Steve Cooley.

Defense attorney Ed Chernoff told CNN the defense team's main job right now is to prepare for sentencing and limit the amount of time that Murray spends in jail.

"What matters most right now is trying to keep Dr. Murray from taking up a prison cell in this community," Chernoff said. "That's what we're focusing on right now and we'll deal with an appeal after that."

Murray served as Jackson's personal physician as Jackson prepared for his comeback concerts, with Murray giving him the surgical anesthetic propofol to help him sleep nearly every night for the last two months of his life.

FOUR SCORED

Every week before the Bears game, RedEye's sports crew gets to the point—and we don't let them off the hook. Here's how they fared Monday.

- ☐ Brian Moore: Philadelphia 27, Bears 23

TALKING MONEY

Matt Forte and Lance Briggs have made it clear they want their contracts upgraded, but do their performances back up their demands? Here's how they did at Philadelphia.

Briggs

Few guys can chase Michael Vick halfway across the field and bring him down. Kudos for tipping a pass that led to an interception, too.

$$$$

Forte

He looked unstoppable at times, but losing two fumbles knocks him down several pegs.

- $$$$ Stop whining.
- $$$$ Maybe we'll talk.
- $$$$ You've got a real shot.
- $$$$ Cha-ching!

SO MUCH TO LIKE

Who was in a better mood after the latest Bears-Eagles showdown?

RedEye

Michael Vick is turning heads lately, thanks to his (usually) outstanding play. He's also still a polarizing figure, thanks to his dogfighting conviction and the prison sentence that followed.

Forbes.com reported Monday that Vick is the NFL's most disliked player, according to a poll by Nielsen and E-Poll Market Research. The website reports that 60 percent of those polled said they "dislike," "dislike somewhat" or "dislike a lot" the Philadelphia quarterback.

Joining Vick on the list is Jay Cutler (No. 5, 38 percent). Apparently, some people still are upset that the Bears quarterback sat out the second half of last season's NFC championship game with an injury.

Regardless of how fans feel about Vick or Cutler, all that was secondary during Monday's showdown in Philly—the fifth straight year the Bears and Eagles have met in the regular season. Here's what Bears fans liked and disliked, game-wise.

1st QUARTER

Likes: The Bears offense looked ultra smooth on its opening drive, marching 79 yards on 12 plays and ending it with a Matt Spaeth TD catch.

Jay Cutler never was touched, mostly because a heavy dose of Matt Forte punched right through the Eagles D. Dislikes: We're nitpicking here, honestly. If we have to pick out something negative, we suppose the Bears could have done without the penalty that turned a third-and-2 play into third-and-7.

Score: Bears 7, Philadelphia 0

2nd QUARTER

Like: Just when it looked like Philly had the Bears defense figured out, Major Wright picks off Vick. A few plays later, Robbie Gould nails a 51-yard field goal. And to cap the half, the Bears capitalize on an Eagles fumbled punt with a Marion Barber TD run.

Dislike: The Bears pick a bad time to get a case of the dropsies. With two minutes left, Hester lets a long pass slip through his hands. Then Dane Sanzenbacher muffs one. Finally, Forte of all people fumbles after a reception, and Philly returns it for a TD. Yuck.

Score: Bears 17, Philadelphia 10

3rd QUARTER

Like: Not much went right until the end of the quarter, when Cutler engineered a drive that ended in another Gould field goal. The defense was on the field a lot—would it have anything left for the fourth?

Dislike: The Bears defense let the Eagles convert third down after third down to open the quarter, resulting in a tie at 17. Then the big play hurt them as LeSean McCoy broke off a 33-yard touchdown run to put Philly ahead.

Score: Philadelphia 24, Bears 20

4th QUARTER

Like: Cutler went deep into his bag of tricks on one TD drive. Whether it was falling down to escape a sack and turning it into a completion, finding Hester with a lateral or hitting Earl Bennett in the corner of the end zone, the Bears QB was money.

Dislike: Hester hobbled off the field midway through the quarter and did not return. Hopefully six days gives him enough time to recover. The Bears also were fooled badly on a fake punt, but the pass was incomplete.

Final score: Bears 30, Philadelphia 24

Urlacher opens up about his mom

Chicago Tribune

Brian Urlacher for the first time spoke at length about the sudden death earlier this season of his mother in an ESPN interview in advance of the Bears' game Monday in Philadelphia.

Asked in the ESPN Sunday Conversation interview how he learned about the death of his mother Lavoyda, 51, during the week before the Bears' Week 2 game at New Orleans, Urlacher said, "The people who found her called me. It was tough. I knew something was wrong when I answered the phone."

"She wasn't in great health. She had a lot of back issues. She smoked. My mom smoked since she was 14 until she was 51, and so it probably didn't help her situation any. We're still waiting to figure out what happened."

Urlacher said he was touched by how many players from around the NFL contacted him to offer their sympathies.

"I think that just speaks to what kind of person she was and how boisterous and outgoing she was," he said. "The support that we received, it was unreal. Guys I'd met before but never talked to and I don't have their phone numbers were texting me, calling me. I got some actual hand-written letters from some players. I can't tell you the last time I wrote a letter. ... Some of the guys were in our division, so that was really cool."

1	Scoring five power-play goals in one game is like ...	Wait, I'm confused, are we talking about the lottery?	... Luongo letting up only five goals in an important game. Very rare.	... the late great Wilt Chamberlain nailing more than 1,000 broads in his lifetime. Unreal!	... pure domination. Like playing a pickup game against the cast of "Little People, Big World."	... the amount of attention America pays to the Kardashians: ridiculous.
2	What's your substitute for watching NBA games?	If I want to watch millionaires put a halfhearted effort into their jobs, I'll watch C-SPAN.	Tofu NBA.	Watching past Bulls title runs on Comcast and NBA TV. Good stuff and great memories.	Sorry, but my sculpture of "Webster's" Emmanuel Lewis is always my priority—the NBA was the substitute.	Replaying "Dragon Age: Origins" again. Nerd.
3	The Bears are to "Monday Night Football" as pervs are to ESPN reporter Erin Andrews: It will only end up in public humiliation and a lawsuit.	... Justin Bieber is to that lip ring girl: on it way too much.	... as beer and wings are to watching football: a great combination. Go Bears!	... Otto von Bismarck was to German unification. Well, maybe. OK, no.	... Steve Urkel was to "Family Matters": prone to embarrassment.
4	Give Carlos Zambrano some advice for pitching in the Winter League.	"First, all pitchers in Hugo Chavez's country are lefties ... if they ever want to be seen again."	"Don't punch the space heater."	"Don't hit any Gatorade buckets or punch any teammates in the face."	"Just pretend that every game you don't walk anybody you've just won a free day at Chuck E. Cheese ... fatty."	"You have 18 million reasons to get in shape or be shipped out."
5	Whom is this quote about: "He's a special dude"?	I have him narrowed down to Wayne, Garth or Jeff Spicoli.	The grammatically correct question asker.	Garrard McClendon for winning an Emmy as the Best In Chicago TV! Congrats brother!	Who else could it be? Tim Tebow, our Lord and Savior!	Pretty sure Cutler used to say that about Greg Olsen. wistful sigh

The days are getting darker for Bulls fans, and I'm not just talking about the end of daylight saving time. Millionaires are fighting with billionaires over a few percentage points of a multibillion-dollar pot. If you're a Bulls fan, you've braced yourself for a cold, hard truth: There might not be any ball this season.

Before you compose a handwritten letter to David Stern, streaked with tears of frustration, anger and whiskey (we've all been there), know that you've got a friend. A vulcanized rubber friend that's 3 inches in diameter.

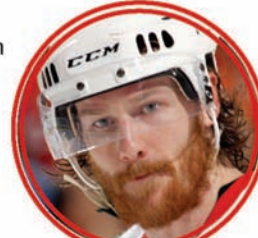

HOCKEY. I AM REFERRING TO HOCKEY.

If you miss that sports fix two to four days a week, the Blackhawks are here for you. And get this: They're pretty damn good this year. Now's the time to jump into the NHL with both feet. Here's a primer to help you decide which Blackhawks can replace your favorite Bulls.

Derrick Rose: Although Jonathan Toews is the captain and probably the Hawks' best all-around player, Patrick Kane is the fastest man on the ice in every game so far. No. 88 on a breakaway looks like No. 1 on the fast break: Something awesome's going to happen, and very quickly.

Joakim Noah: Awesome hair and awesome defense? Duncan Keith was the NHL's best defenseman two years ago, is consistently among the league leaders in ice time, and his shoulder-length hockey hair is without equal.

Kyle Korver: Big fan of the good-looking sharpshooter? Too easy: Patrick Sharp is your new man-crush.

Joakim Noah*Duncan Keith

Kurt Thomas: Your favorite Bull was Kurt Thomas? Really? If you believe players only get better with age, enjoy defenseman Sean O'Donnell. He's 354 days older than Thomas. (Really.)

C.J. Watson: You loved hearing Stacey King say his name, I get it. Switch out the Bulls' No. 32 for the Hawks' No. 32 and you get John Scott. He has two roles: 1) Deterring other teams from hitting our guys and 2) Hitting other teams' guys. His nickname is "Murdersaurus." It sounds even better out loud and when the other guy is bleeding.

Hate the Red Wings, hate the Canucks, strongly dislike everyone else. Red and black color schemes still work. Enjoy four games in the next six days!

Shamrock shakeup

Leapin' leprechauns! The Irish will break out their green jerseys against Maryland on Saturday, and they also will don a new "Shamrock Series" helmet just three weeks after debuting a new gold helmet against USC. The "Shamrock Series" helmet, according to a Notre Dame statement, is "covered in 24-carat gold leaf" and has oversized green shamrocks on each side and a leprechaun decal on the back. If it brings them luck, so be it, but it might not be the most intimidating image.

MOUTH WATCH

Two of us will be online and we'll call this person who will call another person. There could be as many as 12 of us on the same team. It's a fun group activity. ... Every now and then I might get one kid who asks [if we're Bears players]. They'll see our screen names and put it together."

—Bears kick returner Devin Hester, on playing the "Call of Duty" video games. Hester spoke to the Tribune's Luis Gomez while promoting the third installment of the game, which is available Tuesday.

The Cubs feel special now

Texas pitching coach Mike Maddux withdrew from consideration for Boston's managerial vacancy on Monday. He told mlb.com he is still planning to interview with the Cubs about their vacancy. The Cubs had not announced an interview date yet with Maddux, though he was supposed to be in as their third candidate later this week. Theo Epstein and Jed Hoyer did interview Dale Sveum on Monday; he is the second candidate in the process.

FOR REDEYE

It's a familiar Thanksgiving routine: stressing out in the kitchen, eating yourself into a food coma and passing out while watching football on TV. To skip the fuss and spice up this year's tradition, try one of these dinners Nov. 24. Make sure to make your reservation soon—before they're all gobbled up.

LENNY GILMORE/REDEYE FILE

FOR SPLURGING Nomi Kitchen

800 N. Michigan Ave. 312-239-4030

The Park Hyatt's chi-chi restaurant re-opened earlier this year with a slightly more casual vibe, but it still knows how to do it up in style for Turkey Day. A seriously decadent buffet will feature European-influenced holiday dishes, from seafood to charcuterie to pastries.

On the table: Pumpkin risotto, roasted turkey breast with potato puree, roasted squash panzanella, wild mushroom salad with honey-glazed duck, maple panna cotta and pecan cream puffs.

Price: $115; $35 for kids ages 5-12

Reservations available: 11:30 a.m.-8 p.m.

FOR A SMALL GATHERING Longman & Eagle

2657 N. Kedzie Ave. 773-276-7110

Chef Jared Wentworth is planning a family-style feast for each table at this Logan Square favorite. After 9 p.m., hungry diners can score leftover plates for about $10.

On the table: French green bean casserole with leek cream, tarragon-roasted spaghetti squash, chestnut-foie gras stuffing, roasted turkey with bourbon-orange-cranberry sauce and sweet potato pie.

Price: $65

Reservations available: Seatings at 3 and 6 p.m.

CHEAP EATS

FOR FAR-EAST FLAIR Lure

2017 S. Wells St. 312-225-8989

Mix up your meal at this Japanese izakaya in Chinatown, which will offer a four-course dinner putting an Asian spin on American traditions.

On the table: Golden beets with arugula, prosciutto and bleu cheese; Japanese pumpkin and leek soup; garlic-teriyaki turkey with french fries and pumpkin gelato with toasted marshmallows and dried cranberries.

Price: $20

Reservations available: 4 p.m.-1 a.m.

FOR A DINNER DATE Tribute

800 S. Michigan Ave. 312-957-0000

If you and your sweetie can't go home for the holidays, dine on comforting specials at this South Loop spot in the Essex Inn. The regular menu also will be available.

On the table: Roasted turkey breast with gravy, mashed potatoes and green beans with bacon ($21); stuffing, candied sweet potatoes

HIDE & SEEK

CARMEN SANDIEGO VS. WALDO

By Dana Moran | REDEYE

Will sleuthing be the new vampires and zombies in 2012? Entertainment Weekly confirms that a live-action version of “Where in the World is Carmen Sandiego?” is in the works, potentially starring Jennifer Lopez. And MGM studios announced Monday it bought the movie rights to the “Where’s Waldo?” series. We dug out our magnifying glass to see which trickster has the most movie potential. DAMORAN@TRIBUNE.COM | @REDEYEDANA

As leader of the Villains’ International League of Evil, or V.I.L.E., Carmen travels the globe committing absurd thefts. She’s never seen without her trademark red trench coat and hat. ☒

DOSSIER

☐ This red-and-white-striped sweater/stocking hat-clad gent hails from Britain, and often is found hiding in plain sight.

WINNER: Carmen. What got her to this level of evil? The world wants answers.

Carmin the cat, thieving lawyer Justin Case, international playboy twins Double Trouble, dirty biker Top Grunge ☒

SIDEKICKS

☐ Frighteningly identical girlfriend, Wenda; her frighteningly identical twin and Waldo’s ex, Wilma; Waldo’s dog, Woof, who looks strangely like a sock monkey

WINNER: Carmen. You know you wish your friends had names as cool as her V.I.L.E. cohorts.

Seriously, does globe-spanning not do enough for you? Her computer game titles also include “Where in Time?” and “Where in Space?” if you’ve gotten bored. ☐

PAST PORTS OF CALL

☒ The beach, a carnival, a fruit fight, a safari park, Rome in 58 A.D. Apparently his huge backpack of tricks also includes a time machine and unlimited travel vouchers.

WINNER: Waldo. There’s a fruit fight involved, people.

That red hat does not come off—ever. Come to think of it, we’ve also never seen more than one of her eyes at any given time. ☐

LEVEL OF INTRIGUE

☒ This mystery man’s age, height, weight and occupation all are unknown, as is his reason for carrying a cane. Also, why is he always smiling?

WINNER: Waldo. He seems friendly enough, but what depths hide behind those owl specs?

Jennifer Lopez
GETTY IMAGES

Lust! Danger! Ancient statue theft! This Carmen would be a blend of JLo’s “Out of Sight” and “The Thomas Crown Affair”—but with more ridiculous henchmen. ☐

POTENTIAL PLOT

☒ A happy-go-lucky British manboy combs the globe for his missing parents, wearing the same outfit every day in hopes of recognition. Along the way, he gets into some weird stuff with his lady doppelgangers.

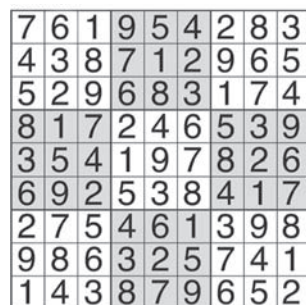

WINNER: Waldo. We’re STILL curious about this whole Wilma/Wenda situation.

OVERALL WINNER

WALDO. Carmen was all over PBS in the ’90s—it’s time for a new story.

That's how much Snooki gets paid to post a tweet for an advertiser, according to sponsoredtweets.com. Why so much? She has 3.7 million followers.

Just a quickie

As expected, Lindsay Lohan served only 5 hours in jail before she was released early Monday because of overcrowding. She had been ordered to spend 30 days behind bars for a probation violation, but word came soon after that she would be released early. Well, that should teach her not to break the law.

Returning fire

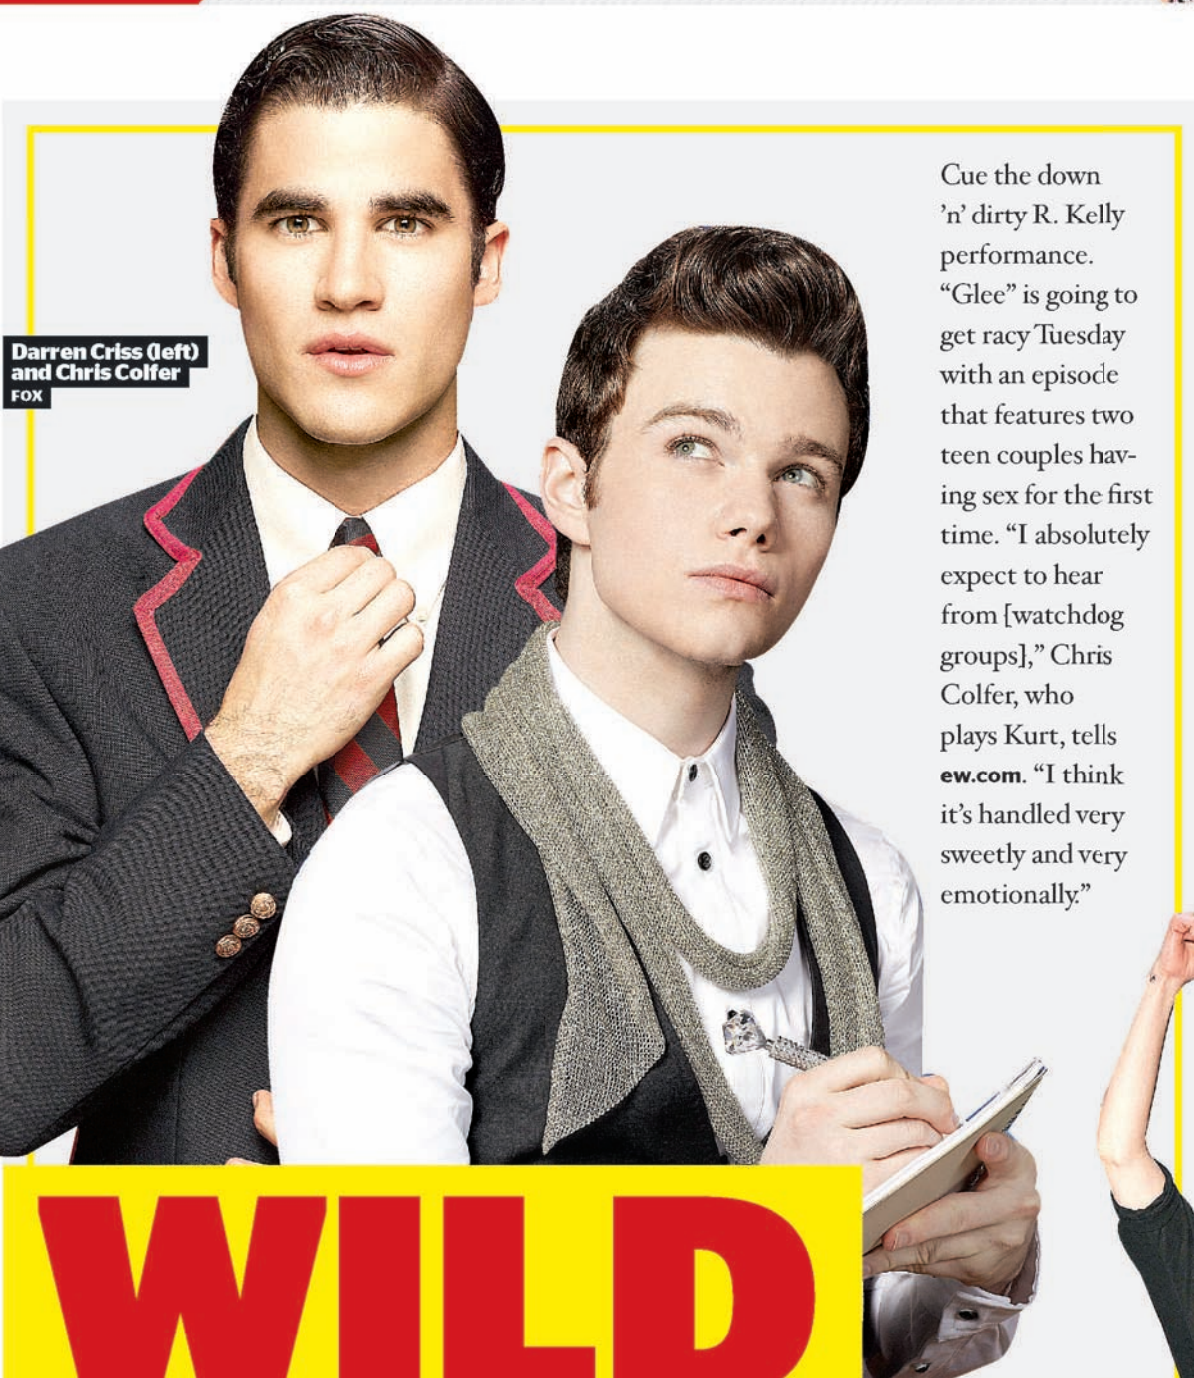

You wouldn't like the Bieb when he's angry. Justin Bieber plans to take a DNA test to prove he is not the father of a child with Mariah Yeater, who recently slapped Bieber with a paternity suit, people.com reports. Bieber, who vehemently denies Yeater's allegation, also likely will sue her, his camp says.

“Listen, enjoy it, buy it if you like it... and take care until next time.”

—Drake's tweet Sunday night after his new album, "Take Care," leaked in its entirety. The album is due out Nov. 15.

FOX

Cue the down 'n' dirty R. Kelly performance. "Glee" is going to get racy Tuesday with an episode that features two teen couples having sex for the first time. "I absolutely expect to hear from [watchdog groups]," Chris Colfer, who plays Kurt, tells ew.com. "I think it's handled very sweetly and very emotionally."

On the bright side ...

While Kim Kardashian briefly met with her estranged husband Sunday in Minnesota, the rest of her family is having a laugh at her expense, thanks to a wicked "Saturday Night Live" sketch. "Ha! I just saw the SNL skit they did and I could not stop laughing.... LOL," Khloe K. tweeted. "I peed!" Kourtney K. added. You can always count on sisters to be supportive in times of crisis.

Beaten up

Avril Lavigne said she suffered a bloodied face and black eye after five people allegedly attacked her and boyfriend Brody Jenner outside the Hollywood Roosevelt Hotel early Sunday, tmz.com reports. "Not cool," she tweeted Sunday. "My face is [bleeped]." The attackers reportedly fled before police arrived.
